

Politicized Will to Power, or of the political Eternal Return

João C. Galvão Jr.*

Abstract:

Beginning with the nietzschean concept of “will to power” and with its articulation with the concepts of right(s) and violence, in a political-philosophical reading, the present work is a study about the right(s) found in violence and in its particular ways of political manifestation. It investigates which the plastic power of the subordinates could be, that allows them to affirm their rights and develop themselves originally and independently, healing their wounds and sufferings.

Key-words: Violence; Rights; Will to power
